PD03-1 Surgical treatment of Colorectal Liver Metastases (CLM)

Discussant

René Adam is Medical Director of a Department of Digestive and HPB diseases, Cancers and Transplantation, including nine surgical units and 4 hospitals of Assistance Publique - Hôpitaux de Paris (AP-HP). Since 1994, he has held the position of Professor of Surgery at the Faculty of Medicine at Paris-Saclay University.

Professor Adam's main fields of activity and research are surgery of the liver, biliary tract and pancreas, and hepatic transplantation. He is particularly involved in the treatment of primary and secondary liver tumors especially by combination of chemotherapy and surgery. He is head of a Research team of Paris-Saclay University, "Chronotherapy, Cancer and Transplantation" especially devoted to innovative projects on fast track surgery, domomedecine and optimization of liver function recovery through machine perfusion in liver transplantation. He is also General Manager of the European Liver Transplant Registry (ELTR), and Director of LiverMetsurvey that he founded in 2005 and collects more than 30,000 operated patients. He is President Elect of the International Hepatic Pancreatic Biliary Association (IHPBA). He has made more than 800 scientific communications at congress, has delivered 741 lectures as invited speaker on international meetings around the world, and has published 592 peer-reviewed articles with a PubMed H-index of 120 and more than 67000 citations to date.

Next Generation Program 3: Empowering Women in HPB Surgery: Expert Perspectives

June 29 (Sat.) 13:10-14:40 [Room 7]

NGP03-1 Empowering Asian Women Surgeons through Professional Development

Dr. Dua is a Clinical Associate Professor of Surgery at Stanford. Her clinical specialty is in hepatobiliary and gastrointestinal oncology with a primary focus on benign and malignant disease of the liver, pancreas, and bile duct including disease processes of pancreatic cancer, pancreatitis, colorectal cancer liver metastases, bile duct cancer, bile duct injuries, choledochal cysts, and hepatocellular carcinoma of the liver. Dr. Dua is able to perform many of her operations in a minimally invasive manner including robotic pancreatic resections and laparoscopic operations of the liver. She is an active instructor in the Stanford University surgical clerkship curriculum for medical students and also serves as the regional HPB Surgeon at the VA Palo Alto Health Care System. Dr. Dua is an active leader of multiple surgical society committees, on the Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion cabinet at Stanford, and serves as the associate program director for the HPB fellowship, and the associate program director of the Stanford general surgery residency. She participates in the Benign Pancreas Program at Stanford and her research includes both benign and malignant aspects of GI/HPB surgery with a focus on the management of severe pancreatitis as well as surgical strategies for the treatment of necrotizing pancreatitis. Other research interests include the application of minimally invasive approaches to the surgical management of HPB diseases including laparoscopic techniques in liver surgery and the use of laparoscopic and robotic platforms in pancreatic surgery.
